

September 2011

Parents Matter Coalition of Pierre/Fort Pierre newsletter will be published on a monthly basis beginning in September. The purpose of a monthly newsletter is to keep community and coalition members posted on what's happening with the Coalition and the topics covered in the, "Communities Mobilizing for a Change in Alcohol Policy" (CMCA).

September's featured topic is "Policy". Policies can be defined as standards or rules for behavior or practices that are formalized to some degree, and are embodied in rules, regulations, or operating procedures. The three main categories of policies: Family, Institutional and Public.

Parents play a key role in preventing underage drinking, but they can not be expected to bear the entire responsibility for young people's alcohol use. Parents are not the only factor influencing underage drinking. There are other factors such as availability of alcohol, social acceptance; media and even encouragement of excessive drinking contribute to youth alcohol use. (CMCA).

What Parents Can Do To Reduce Youth Access to Alcohol

- Monitoring the alcohol supply in the home. The primary sources of alcohol for youth are in their own homes or a friend's home. Parents can reduce youth access to alcohol by keeping alcohol out of the home or making it inaccessible to their children. If parents choose to keep alcohol in their home, storing alcohol in a locked cabinet or closet can help to avoid youth from accessing it.
- Talk with other parents. Parents should talk with the parents of their teenager's friends about whether underage alcohol use is prohibited at home. For free resources and additional tips on what you can do to help reduce underage drinking, please visit: the website: Parents. The Anti-drug: www.theantidrug.com Parents Matter also has materials available. Please visit our website: www.parentsmattercsd.com or access the free 15 minute website for the Parent Alcohol Education Class: <http://highschoolparents.alcoholedu.com>.

- Never purchase or provide alcohol to your teen's friends or other youth. SD Law permits parents to provide alcohol to their own children. The law prohibits adults from providing alcohol to other youth.
- Avoid providing your teen with alcohol. Although providing alcohol to one's own child is legal, it may send him/her a mixed message about alcohol consumption, and it may increase that child's risk of problems related to alcohol use. Studies have found that youth who are provided with alcohol were more likely to: drink, drink heavily, get in traffic accidents, be involved in violence, and participate in thefts. (CMCA)

Other studies have found that youth who start drinking before the age of 15 were five times as likely to report past alcohol dependence or abuse than people who first used alcohol at age 21 or older (SAMHSA, Building Successful Coalitions to Address Underage Drinking AMA-Robert Wood Johnson Foundation).

Parents need support to create policies at home to keep their children safe, but if they are parenting in an environment where social norms say that youth drinking are acceptable or inevitable, there is pressure on them to ignore or unwittingly promote youth drinking. (CMCA).

Parents Matter CSD of Pierre and Fort Pierre is inviting community members to join in our efforts in providing support and information in keeping our youth alcohol free. Coalition membership is free and open to everyone. Please visit our website: www.parentsmattercsd.com for the on-line membership form, Coalition Membership Agreement or e-mail your request: parentsmatter@pie.midco.net.
